

OCA Affiliation

The Ohio Cattlemen's Association board of directors has established an affiliation for county cattlemen's associations. The annual affiliation fee will be $150.00. A formalized affiliation will strengthen the ties between county and state and help promote a closer sense of belonging for beef producers. The $150.00 OCA county affiliation fee will be renewable each year on January 1.

One service OCA provides county cattlemen's affiliates is liability insurance coverage. The typical beef promotional activities of county cattlemen associations can be covered under OCA's liability insurance. This will eliminate the need for a county to purchase an additional liability policy. This added service could save most county organizations several hundred dollars in insurance premiums.

The liability insurance policy covers OCA and county members, but only with respect to their liability for association activities or activities they perform on behalf of the association. This means the normal activities of a county cattlemen's association, such as county fair beef stands, mall or food retail promotions, calf scrambles, county steer weigh-ins, club calf sales and shows, etc. are covered under the existing policy. Activities including automobiles are excluded from coverage. This insurance is liability coverage due to bodily injury. It does not cover property owned by county associations. All contracts that county affiliates sign, should be signed as, "_____ County Cattlemen's Association an affiliate of the Ohio Cattlemen's Association."

The insurance coverage is just one of the many additional services available to county cattlemen's associations. Some other services include a discount on OCA BEST sanctioned shows, promotional materials for county use, a speaker's directory, assistance with local publicity efforts, availability of OCA officers and staff to speak at local meetings and the Outstanding County Affiliate Program. Only those counties paying the affiliation fee will be listed in the Ohio Cattleman magazine and as affiliates for insurance purposes.

If your county has additional questions regarding the affiliation fee or liability insurance, please contact the OCA office at (614) 873-6736.
